WAR IMPENDING.

Chances of a Conflict Between Russia and England Increasing.

Forced Upon the Ministry by the Belligerent People.

England Refuses Continuance of Diplomatic Discussion

Unless Russian Troops are Withdrawn from the Frontier.

The Czar's Utterances Agents Looking About for Cruisers.

A Pugnacious Attitude

LONDON, April 11. A very determined and grave position has been assumed by the English government toward Russia concerning the Penjdeh incident. The ministers, it appears, have been coerced by the aggressiveness of public opinion into a tardy but evidently determined attitude of pugnacity. At first Mr Gladstone satisfied himself with demanding an explanation of Gen. Komaroff's attack on the Afghans. He felt sure that Russia would be desirous of peace and would discountenance the action of the commander, no matter how thoroughly he might have represented the bellicose policy of the St. Petersburg war party, but when the czar answered that he would explain to England as soon as General Komaroff explained to him the British premier was forced to conclude that the czar was trifling to gain time. To-day, therefore, Earl Granville, British foreign minister, advised Baron De Staal, Russian ambassador to London, that the British government had decided that whatever the nature of the Russian explanation of General Komaroff's action might be Great Britain would not allow any further discussion concerning the delimitation of Afghan frontier to go on until the Russian troops have been withdrawn from their present outposts in the disputed territory back to the positions they occupied at the time England appointed her part of the commission to adjust the Afghan frontier. As this was nearly a year ago, and as almost all the Russian advance has been made in the interval, it is difficult to believe that Russia will seriously attempt to reach an amicable understanding.

Count Von Munster, the German embassador to London, is given as authority for a most significant utterance on the part of the British ministers. The German minister states that at a conference upon the Afghan situation held yesterday, Earl Granville declared that England had resolved that it was impossible to consent to a continuance of diplomatic discussion with Russia unless England was guaranteed security against having the results of the controversy imperilled by collision on the disputed frontier such as had occurred on the Kushk. England, Lord Granville said, must refuse to accept Russia's assurance that she desires peace unless the assurance was accompanied by a withdrawal of troops to a line drawn from Tepo to Sari Yazi.

At the German and Russian embassies here, the opinion is expressed that the dispute between the czar and Great Britain has actually reached the final phase in diplomacy.

Russia's Explanation Supported.

VIENNA, April 11. Vienna government circles entertain very peaceful opinions about the Anglo-Russian dispute. The czar has informed both the Vienna and Berlin cabinets that he does not desire war. The English demand for the retirement of General Kamoroff's forces from their present position will, however, not be acceded to, since it is evident that the advance of Afghans was the provocation leading to the recent attack. This view of the matter entertained by Russia is also held by Austria and Germany. Both of these powers support the Russian government in this explanation of the recent battle. It is a noteworthy fact that Katoff's Weekaur Journal on the seventh of April published landscape sketches of Penjdeh and prophesied the recent battle.

Russia continues her naval and military preparations with great energy. Admiral Shestokoff has ordered all torpedo boats to be sent to the Baltic and Black seas. Torpedoes have just been sunk at the canal binding St. Petersburg with the sea of Kronstadt. St. Petersburg and the palace at Krasnoe Silo are connected by telephone, so that the czar will be informed of any movement in case of an attack by an English fleet. The Russian fleet has been in a thorough state of readiness since the 2d of April. Kamoroff's brother, the editor of the Russian journal Svet, announces that Russia intends to send one hundred thousand men to Herat as soon as the English advance to Pischin.

Bismarck's Opinion

BERLIN, April 11. Prince Bismarck in a private conversation with a friend last night said he was convinced that there will be no war. Mr. Gladstone's statement made in the house of commons late on Thursday night about the Afghans having thrown out pickets before the Russians advanced clears the way for an understanding between Russia and England

War Predicted.

BRUSSELS, April 11.—Le Nord, the most rabid pro-Russian newspaper in Belgium, predicts war between Russia and England. Le Nord is regarded as a semi-official organ of the Russian government, and this article is believed to have been inspired. The paper has hitherto expressed sanguine hopes of peace, but it now says war is impending.

Ships for Russia

PHILADELPHIA, April 11. An order for six fast iron cruisers of the Esmeralda pattern was received in this city Thursday. These vessels are nominally ordered by private gentlemen, just as they might order steam yachts, but they will be for sale when completed and offers of only one European government will be entertained, and it is thought that government will be Russia. Three paramount features will be insisted on, namely nineteen knots of speed and coal carrying capacity for twenty-five days steaming and buoyancy for three steel rifled cannon of large calibre. The Esmeralda is regarded by the prospective owners of these vessels as the highest type of a war vessel that floats. It was built for Chili in England by Sir William Armstrong and is about four thousand tons. The six vessels to be built on her model will not exceed twenty-two thousand tons in size and will not have an ounce of unnecessary plating on them. The syndicate of capitalists included in this scheme believe in making money by selling ships just as their colleagues in grain and produce business hope to improve their condition by feeding the struggling nations, and hold that provisions are quite as much a contraband of war as ships. The keels for these vessels will be laid immediately.

WASHINGTON, April 11. It is stated on the authority of a naval officer that the Russian minister to the United States has endeavored to secure the services of a naval officer here in purchasing a number of small vessels used between San Francisco and the Sandwich Islands in transporting sugar. The vessels are to be used, the officer says, in preying upon English commerce in Japanese and Indian waters, should war be declared between Russia and England.

Russian War Feeling.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 11. The Journal De St. Petersburg, speaking evidently by official inspiration, comments on the recent government utterance in the British parliament on the Penjdeh incident as premature. It says it thinks it would have been preferable for the English ministers to have suspended judgment until the receipt of more complete information. They should have acted on the supposition that it was unlikely that the Russian general acted with good reasons. They should have borne in mind that collisions such as that which occurred on the Kushk were always possible in the presence of a violent and undisciplined Asiatic population. The Penjdeh incident, concludes the Journal, was certainly an untoward event because it may adversely affect negotiations pending between the Russians and the English, which still justify a hope for peace. The war feeling here is overwhelmingly strong. The czar appeared at a theater last evening. The audience, still enthusiastic over the news from Penjdeh, on the assumption that Kamoroff's conduct had the imperial approval, arose when they saw the czar and shook the building with an ovation of applause.

The czar and czarina and members of the royal family attended a concert this evening at the Grand theatre in this city for the benefit of invalid soldiers. The presence of the czar aroused the greatest enthusiasm. The national anthem was sung by the entire audience. The ovation was continued outside the theatre. The royal party were followed by crowds of people to the gates of the palace.

The minister of war speaking to a circle of officers to-night said he had the assurances of the czar that the Russian troops might advance but would never retire.

A Russian Overture.

LONDON, April 11. M. DeGiers, the Russian prime minister, through Baron De Staal has offered to abandon the Russian proposals to extend the line of the debatable zone proposed by England so as to include the Parapamissus mountains and recur to the line suggested in the Lessar proposals. This offer on the part of the Russian premier, while apparently containing a concession, is considered to be really a ruse to modify the effects of General Kamoroff's attack and to gain time. The Lessar line, while within the Parapamissan line, would hardly be acceptable to English statesmen, although the proposals could be made to appear to the British public as a retreat on the part of Russia. As Earl Granville's demand for the withdrawal of the Russian troops was telegraphed to Sir Edward Thornton at St. Petersburg after the receipt of M. DeGiers' proposal it is inferred that the Russian premier's overture has not met with acceptance and has made no impression upon the English government.

England after Steamships.

NEW YORK, April 11. A Philadelphia correspondent of the Herald says it was stated to the writer this afternoon that the Guion, Red Star and American ship companies had been approached by the British admiralty for terms at which their vessels would be leased to that government. Another steamship agent went so far as to state that the British nation's claims upon the vessels of his line might be asserted at any hour. Vessels of the American company all carry the British flag under the statute that only American-built craft can fly the flag of this land.

Turkey Neutral.

BERLIN, April 11. It is reported here that Turkey has decided, under Prince Bismarck's advice, to remain neutral in event of war between England and Russia.

War Notes.

LONDON, April 11. Two men of war belonging to the channel squadron now at Kingstown, Ireland, have been ordered to Portsmouth to take torpedoes on board. It is reported they will then proceed immediately to the Baltic.

Advices from Odessa state that there is great military activity in that city. Numerous battalions of Cossacks are reviewed every day. The garrison at Kortoch is engaged night and day in hastening the completion of works at that point, and flouring mills are worked at their full capacity in the preparation of provisions.

In official circles it is believed the latest communication from Russia in the Penjdeh incident has not in the least lessened the tension between England and Russia.

LONDON, April 11. Both Russia and England are busily engaged in correspondence with other powers and are actively courting alliance. If the English negotiations with Turkey succeed the most important and immediate result will be the opening of the Dardanelles to the British fleet

General Stevenson, commanding the British forces on the Nile above Cairo, reports to the government that it will be practically impossible to move the British troops from Dongola during the summer because they would have to proceed so slowly.

Ayoub Khan, ex-ameer of Afghanistan, was arrested to-day by the native authorities in Persia on demand of Teheran on information that the ex-ameer had arranged to escape into his old dominions, join the Russians and set up his claims to the present ameer's throne

Later advices from India are to the effect that government dispatches showing the feeling toward England there are unwarrantably rose-colored. There is a feeling among the Indians which under certain circumstances might prove anything but advantageous to British prestige in India in event of a prolonged Anglo-Russian conflict.

General Stewart in anticipation of instructions to advance his entire Indian command, has ordered an advance by way of Quettah of the artillery corps now stationed in the Khost, Peshawar and Hazar districts. The utmost secrecy is maintained about the movements of the British troops in India. The press correspondents at Rawal Pindi are refused all information about army orders. It has however been ascertained that a number of detachments have already left on the route to Quettah. The English and Indian native troops appear to be greatly enlivened by the prospect of war with Russia. They will be intensely disappointed if a peace be arranged.

News has been received from Odessa by way of Varna that transport services on the Black sea are busily absorbed in the work of carrying troops and munitions of war from Sebastopol and Nicolaieff to Batoum and Poti. Immense earthworks are being constructed for the defense of Batoum and Nicolaieff. The new works of defense at Sebastopol have been for the present suspended.

Earl Northbrook, first lord of the admiralty, has ordered acceleration of all the English naval warlike preparations His lordship now holds daily conferences with Admirals Cooper, Key, Brandreth and Richards. The purchases of swift cruisers and the construction of torpedo boats have been increased. The admiralty have decided to organize a great cruiser service of swift vessels. From this fact it is conjectured that the government intends to repudiate the declaration of the treaty of Paris concerning privateering.

LONDON, April 11.—Several batteries of artillery have been ordered to embark at once for India.

War News and Grain.

CHICAGO, April 11.—11 a. m. The excitement in the grain market has run very high to-day with higher prices again prevailing on the renewed belief that war between England and Russia may be declared. Government estimates reducing the probable winter wheat yield one hundred million bushels supplemented by continued bad reports from wheat-growing districts was also employed as a bull argument.

Wales Gaining Popularity.

DUBLIN, April 11. The enthusiasm over the Prince and Princess of Wales appears to be on the increase among the common people. Their royal highnesses to-day visited the college and were presented with addresses by various college societies. After leaving Trinity they visited several schools in Dublin. Crowds surrounded and cheered the royal visitors wherever they went.

The Markets

NEW YORK, April 11.—Money on call continues easy at one per cent, closing at one; prime mercantile paper 4 to 5; bar silver unchanged at 106⅝; foreign exchange in an extremely dull condition with unchanged quotations. Actual business is done at 4.84½ to 4.86¾; government bonds quiet and steady; state securities quiet and quotations in some cases lower; railway bonds rather quiet. The stock market continues subject chiefly to European war news. At the opening this morning prices were firm and in some cases ⅛ to ⅝ higher. There was a manifest disposition on the part of shorts in grangers and Vanderbilts to cover. There are rumors that a new "bull" combination has been formed in the grangers. The market continued strong but only fairly active until the announcement was made near the middle of the day that England would probably declare war before Monday, when an active buying movement set in accompanied by a further advance in prices, which continued until about two o'clock. In the last hour the market was firmly held but made no further gains and finally closed strong near the best prices of the day. Total sales 246,580 shares, an increase over yesterday of 90,600 shares, but of to-day's business over one-third consisted of sales of Northwestern, St Paul and Lackawanna, Lake Shore, Pacific Mail and Western Union. Compared with last evening prices are generally from ½ to 2 per cent higher. Comparing prices this evening with closing prices a week ago almost everything shows an advance ranging from ½ to 2½ per cent.

A Cholera Scare

CLEVELAND, April 11. Considerable excitement prevails among several Cleveland physicians and people who live in the vicinity of Alum street by the death of two children under peculiar symptoms. About ten days ago the small child of Mrs. Russell was taken ill and died. After death the body turned black. Yesterday a second child died of the same disease and its body also turned black. The symptoms manifested were purging, vomiting and irritation. The health officer and coroner are unwilling to pronounce the disease cholera without thorough investigation. They will hold a post mortem to-morrow.

Indian Outbreak Threatened

WASHINGTON, April 11. Through an unofficial source the interior department has been informed that the Crow, Cheyenne and Pigeon Indians in northern Wyoming, just south of the Crow reservation, were preparing for an outbreak and that the white settlers in the vicinity were in danger.

RUGBY FOOT BALL.

Denver University Downed by Colorado College by a Score of 12 to 0.

On account of the severe wind storm that prevailed yesterday morning the game of foot ball announced between the Denver University team and the Colorado College team did not take place. In the afternoon however the wind subsided and the players of both teams were notified that the game would take place at three o'clock, when all were expected to be present. At that hour quite a large number of people gathered upon the ground, but it was somewhat later before the opposing teams were present and prepared to enter into the contest.

After the settlement of differences W. S. Iliff was selected as judge for the Denver team and Charles Seldomridge for the Colorado college boys, and F. O Wood as referee.

The contest then began with the following teams in the field.

Denver University—C. White, captain; C. C. Dawson, H. Lee, G. Godding, G. Manly, E. E. Kitchen, H. Buckleman, W. Cady, H. Newton and F. McCartney.

Colorado College R. D. McLeod, captain; I. T. Gray, G. B. Pickett, L. B. Vella, J. E. Mershon, Al Boobee, Ernest Stark, Bertie Storer, Geo. McKenzie, C. B. Ferris and J. D. Ellsworth.

It was agreed that the game should last just one hour, the side having the most points at the termination of that time to be declared the victors.

In the first round the Colorado College boys manifested their superior strength and acquaintance with the rules by keeping the ball very close to their opponents' goal. There were at times some very good plays made on both sides, but when time was called on the first round the score stood Denver 0, Colorado Springs 8.

In the second round the visitors made a desperate effort and not without effect. They held their opponents down better, and, although allowing them to make four more points, by careful playing saved at least an increase in the score of from four to eight. When the hour was up the score stood 12 to 0 in favor of the Colorado College team, and they left the field with three hearty cheers for the Denver University team.

By way of apology for the Denver players we will say that three of their regulars were absent and their places had to be taken by substitutes. The college boys feel very happy over their victory and take some consolation in the fact that while they were unfairly handicapped in the oratorical contest they can fairly amuse their visitors on Rugby foot ball.

A DRUGGIST'S PRESCRIPTION.

The Only Clue to the Identity of James A. Crowley.

The discovery of the decomposed remains of at the time an unknown man on the plains several miles east of this city early in May, 1882, is still fresh in the minds of many of our readers. Mr. E. G. Perkins was at that time coroner, and under his instructions a jury was summoned and a careful investigation held. The only things found upon his person were two pill boxes, one filled by Dr. Pepin of St. Louis and numbered 88,159 and the other compounded by A. W. Meilier and numbered 90,425. In response to a dispatch sent to the first named druggist a telegram was received saying that prescription No. 88,159 had been filled for a man by the name of J. A. Crowley. This was the only name settled upon by the jury for the deceased and beyond this nothing has been heard from any source to more clearly establish the identity of the deceased.

Yesterday Mr. D. C. Crowley, after having carefully traced the whereabouts of his brother, arrived in the city. He had previously, through correspondence with Mr. Perkins, thoroughly convinced himself that the decomposed remains found upon the plains and buried in the potter's field in Evergreen cemetery were none other than those of his brother James A. Crowley. He had the remains disinterred and forwarded to the former home of the deceased at Towanda, Pa.

Mr. Crowley seemed very grateful to Mr. Perkins for the information which led to the discovery of his brother's whereabouts and burial place.

It appears that James Crowley was a union officer in the civil war and a member of the Grand Army of the Republic.

A Serious Accident.

While returning from the funeral of Mrs. Tucker at Evergreen cemetery yesterday afternoon by the sudden start of the team attached to one of the conveyance, the hind seat occupied by J. W. Kearne and another gentleman whose name we have been unable to obtain, was tipped over and both thrown forcibly to the ground. Mr. Kearne had his left shoulder dislocated, and the other gentleman his nose broken and one of his eyes badly lacerated. The accident was not owing to any carelessness unless it be that the seat was not properly secured.

Kinglake says that the Crimean war "brought to the grave a million of workmen and soldiers and consumed a pitiless share of the wealth which man's labor had stored up as the means of life." Another war of this kind is not to be hoped for even if it helps American trade.

Judge Felker will at least be an amusing railroad commissioner. He lightened the labors of the senate the last night by singing comic songs. If the people of Clear Creek don't get the redress of their wrongs, Judge Felker can sing to them and cheer them up in this way.

The democrats in this state seem a good deal disheartened about patronage. President Cleveland has not yet removed an officer though there are many that should be removed. It is rumored that the reason the democratic syndicate that went to Washington was not successful was because Senator Teller endorsed the requests for appointments. The new administration fears any of his suggestions about officers for the land or Indian departments.

The nature of the contest between England and Russia seems little understood, especially by those who urge the war policy on England. There was some disagreement as to the rights of Russia and Afghanistan in certain debatable ground that neither occupied A commission was appointed about a year ago to visit the country and report on a boundary line Sir Peter Lumsden was appointed the English commissioner and General Zelenoi the Russian commissioner. But last June the Afghans occupied Penjdeh which is in the debated section, before the commissioners arrived. This was naturally viewed as bad faith by the Russians who justly claimed neither party should occupy the disputed territory while the joint commission was settling it. Russia protested but the Afghans did not retire. The Russians then advanced into the disputed territory. About October first the Russian government proposed that an accurate survey of the debated ground should be made and the two governments should agree to a frontier. This was rejected by Lord Granville about Christmas. Russia then sent an engineer, M Lessar, to London with a proposition from Russia regarding the boundaries. No answer has yet been returned to this. England cannot afford to begin an unjust and unjustifiable war and Gladstone does right to act deliberately.

WHY!

The Hour.

Frequently the question has been asked, "Why were Wells, Robbins, Stone and Falstin defeated?" The average inquirer will not be put off with the stale gag that it was because their opponents were elected, or because they lacked a sufficiency of votes. The Hour will attempt to answer. Mr. Wells, first of all, is a comparative stranger, while Mr. Barnes is known by all legal voters. Secondly, by some means those favoring the package system of disposing of liquors were given to understand that Wells was opposed to that scheme and would throw his influence and official acts against it. Thirdly, during the campaign last fall the gentleman was an active supporter of Mr. Hill. This fact ought not have cut any sort of figure in this election, but it did, all the same, and Wells may just as well figure it down to this, that he has been, to a degree, punished for exercising his right as a citizen and elector.

LITERARY NOTES.

An article on "Lieutenant Greeley at Cape Sabine" will appear in the May Century.

The revised edition of the Old Testament will now be published in a few weeks Messrs. Thomas Nelson & Sons will control the sale of the Oxford edition in America.

The American Caucus System, by George W. Lawton, and the History of the Surplus Revenue in 1837, are two new volumes to be added to Messrs. Putnam's Questions of the Day series.

Houghton, Mifflin & Co have issued a new and inexpensive edition of Mrs Chapman's memorials (with autobiography) of Harriet Martineau, with a heliotype of the statue by Miss Whitney

The Earl of Lytton's new poem, Glenaveril, or, The Metamorphosis, will be published in six books, a book each month, by the Appletons. As it has already been announced it is a picture of modern London life.

The new convenient edition of Shakespeare's works, which for some time Messrs. Henry Holt & Co. have been preparing, is finally ready It will be complete in seven volumes, and the Dyce text will be followed

G. P. Putnam's Sons have ready Afghanistan and the Anglo-Russian Dispute, by Gen T. F. Rodenbough, U. S. A, which will put the reader in possession of the facts of the present difficulty between England and Russia

Mrs. Oliver's Sketch of Dean Stanley "reads well," a good test of a book. Some narrow-minded people have been heard complaining that a Unitarian lady should venture to prepare a life of the Dean of Westminster. And why not?

Funk & Wagnalls, New York, announce A Companion to the Revised Old Testament by the Rev. Dr. T W. Chambers, a member of the American revision committee. It will show the changes made and the reasons for them It will be ready May 11. Price $1.

Among the books announced by Harper & Brothers is a volume giving an account of M. De   expedition to Mexico and Central America in 18.., made under the patronage of Pierre Lorillard It will contain over two hundred illustrations

Messrs Scribner & Welford have just about ready an entertaining new book on Sport, by Mr. Bromley Davenport. It discusses particularly fox hunting, salmon fishing, covert shooting, and deer stalking It is profusely illustrated by colored designs by General Crealocke

G Putnam's Sons have in press, besides works otherwise mentioned, the Hunting Trips of a Ranchman, by Theodore Roosevelt, and the Scriptures for Young People, in three volumes, two for the Old Testament and one for the New, by Rev. E T Bartlett and Professor J. P. Peters.

The Century company have broken ground on Fourth avenue, corner of Astor Place, New York, where they are about to erect a large building. Not only, it is understood, will the editorial offices and salesrooms be provided for in the new structure, but facilities for manufacture will also be included

That ill-fated New York society journal, the American Queen which has blighted so many fond hopes, has become Town Topics, and is being published by an enterprising company of young men who have been more or less known in newspaper circles Mr James B. Townsend is the editor, and Mr. George Edgar Montgomery, formerly of the Times, literary and dramatic critic

Messrs. Harper & Brothers, who issued Mr Stanley's last book, Across the Dark Continent, will publish the new work, the Congo, and the Founding of its New State, a Study of Work and Exploration The manuscript of the book has just been completed, and it will be published as soon as it can be put through the press this month very likely. There will be many maps and illustrations

In the May Century a paper which is said to be of unusual weight and interest will appear, from the pen of the Rev T T Munger, of North Adams, Mass Mr. Munger takes up the subject of "Immortality and Modern Thought," and makes at least the attempt not to summarize what has already been said on the subject, but to throw new light upon it, mainly from the scientific stand-point, in other words, not to summarize past accomplishments, but actually to advance the discussion a step farther

General John D Imboden, who, with other ex-confederate generals, will contribute to the May Century, was one of three officers appointed to examine into the condition of the transportation and commissariat of the confederate army after the battle of Bull Run, and report upon the reasons why the success of that fight was not followed up by an attack on Washington. General Imboden tells in The Century the result of this investigation, which, he relates, was embodied in a report to the confederate administration—and suppressed

Scandinavia, by Prof. H H Boyesen, and Spain, by Mr. E. E. Hale and his sister. There are other volumes still to be announced

The Miracle Play in France

All the Year Round.

For many years the representation of the mystery plays had been regarded by the actors and by the audience as a sacred show. Then by degrees the reverential feeling in the plays was lost. People who had paid their money for admission into the theatre wanted to be amused, and thus the whole spirit of the mysteries became changed. What had been looked upon as a divine worship came to be considered a pastime. And this brought about a rupture with the church Until the excesses had grown too great the priests encouraged these performances; they were so popular that the hour of vespers was advanced in order that all good people might attend the service after they had come out of the theatre. But when the mysteries had definitely broken with the church the plays became a question of profit and loss to the manager. To make them remunerative, the comic scenes were lengthened, the devil became a personage of greater importance, and, discomfited as he always was on the stage before the audience, it was he who played the principal part. A new character, the fool, was introduced, more unseemly than the devil, because of his eccentricities, and then the wildest buffoonery was naturally the most relished. The clergy could not remain indifferent to these excesses, which, under a show of piety, were in fact compromising religion in the gravest way, and finally, when they could not succeed in repressing the burlesque, they got the presentations prohibited by the parliament. This was in 1548 The prohibition extended only to Paris and the neighborhood, for we find these plays were acted in the provinces for some years afterward. Saint-Beuve says. "From a literary and dramatic point of view, that which essentially characterizes the mystery plays is the lowest vulgarity and trivialities of the most abject kind. The authors were troubled by only one care to retrace in the men and things of former times the scenes of everyday life. All their skill was devoted to making this copy, or rather this faithful fac simile."

Up the Himalayas

Good Words

To the north and west what a glorious panorama was spread before us. Some 25 miles to the north the mighty wall of Kamet rose into the air, its gray granite precipices shining like gold in the setting sun. Round it were set at least a dozen aiguilles, not one of which was less than 20,000 feet, and whose precipitous snowless sides no animal even could scale Due west toward the Gangotri peaks, prominent among them the gigantic Rudru Himaleh. Pure ice are these, but ice lying at such an angle as none of us had imagined possible. Here again came the rock aiguilles, all second class peaks as compared with their giant neighbors, all equally black and all equally impossible I know from my limited experience that "impossible" is a strong word, but the powers of man are limited, while the forces of nature are hardly so. In Switzerland even the aiguilles, which rarely give more than 1,000 feet of hard climbing, long resisted the assaults of the most experienced and daring climbers, and only yielded after a long day's attack What then shall be said of these rock turrets which are at least equally steep, and beside which the Matterhorn itself would stand a mockery and a dwarf? Surely for the present race of men the word "impossible" may be still retained in the Alpine dictionary. As I sat and gazed on the view, a strange medley of thoughts passed through my mind. In the intense silence of this height there was something which almost appalled and which forbade speech.

General Grant Enjoying Comparative Freedom from Pain.

He is Still Able to Walk About--His Chief Regret.

Commander Kountz Entertained by the Denver G. A. R.

NEW YORK, April 11 8 a. m.—General Grant dozed comfortably until 1 a m, when he became restless and suffered from pain in his throat. The usual local applications were made, giving partial relief. At 2 a. m. however the administration of anodyne was demanded. Since that time he has been dozing and sleeping by turns. His pulse is 68; temperature 99.5.

The feeling of safety enjoyed to-day by the Grant family is evidenced by the fact that Mrs. Fred Grant, nurse and child left the house and entered the park for a morning stroll. A visitor to the house between 10 and 11 o'clock met the general's wife in the hall and she invited him to go in the general's room and see him. The general was reclining and the visitor was surprised to find him appearing so well Senator Chaffee, Minister Romero, Jesse and Fred Grant were present and the general was taking nourishment at the time.

When Senator Chaffee left the house at 1 30 p. m. he remarked that the pleasant weather had not brightened the general as much as he anticipated His greatest regret when viewing the inevitable is that he is obliged to leave his family and life-long friends and that the crowning work of his life, his war history, will be left incomplete in an unfinished state Otherwise he feels his life work and mission is fulfilled, and he is prepared to leave. At 11 30 Dr. Shrady returned. He said he thought he would not leave the general too long alone. Drs Barker and Douglass would come at 2 p. m at which time the Saturday consultation would take place. Dr. Sands would not attend to-day.

2.45 p. m At a visit of Drs. Barker, Douglass and Shrady, at 2 p. m, General Grant was found in a comfortable condition. He has rested all the morning alternately on his bed and on his chair. Pulse 72; temperature normal.

Gen. Grant has been very quiet all the afternoon. He has been sitting in his room surrounded by and conversing with his family for some time. His pulse is 68; temperature normal. He has taken nourishment as usual.

[Signed.] J. H. DOUGLASS.

Shortly after 10 o'clock Senator Chaffee and General Badeau left General Grant's house, Chaffee said, "The general is now comfortable, and will probably pass an easy night. At 10 30 the house was closed for the night.

NEW YORK, April 12 2.20 a. m, General Grant had at 11 o'clock a severe paroxysm of coughing with spasm of the glottis, which was soon relieved. He is now sleeping. Pulse 72; regular.

[Signed] J. H DOUGLASS.

Once during the day the general arose from his chair and walked firmly across his room and returned without evidence of weakness except the limp which resulted from the injury to the general's limb. Later in the day the general again left his chair, walked into the hall and passed along its entire length to Mrs. Grant's room, which is at the extreme rear of the house. Having reached the apartment the general sat down in a chair and remained some minutes conversing briefly in response to sallies upon his activity. Then he returned unaided to the sick room where he resumed his chair without evident exhaustion. The general's ear is acute and he frequently interjects remarks that prove that he has been an intelligent and appreciative listener to the talk going on about him. A few days since General Grant received from the west a remittance of $2,000 and interest for several years. It came from a man who had borrowed the money from General Grant years ago and whom the general had believed was dead.

General Kountz in Denver.

DENVER, April 11 The Union Pacific train which arrived in Denver this morning brought General John S. Kountz, commander-in chief of the Grand Army of the Republic. Commander Kountz was met at the Union depot by General Bohn, commanding the department of Colorado, and members of his staff, and a large number of Denver members of the G. A. R. Commander Kountz was driven to the Windsor hotel accompanied by General Bohn, Col. James Inman and Col. C. Von Throtha, the latter two gentlemen being aides on the commander-in-chief's staff. Shortly after the arrival of the party at the hotel, a reporter met General Kountz, who in response to a question said "I am now officially visiting the various departments and expect to be absent from Toledo about a month"

"What has been the growth of the order during the time you have been in command, general?"

"At Minneapolis last July it was stated that the membership was 250,000 men or 5,000 posts. At the annual encampment which will be held at Portland, Me., next June, I expect to report 300,000 men and about 6,000 posts. The order is growing fast, and I expect that in time every man who served in the rebellion will be a member of the order; providing, however, that his record is straight."

Commander Kountz spent to-day in visiting points of interest about the city and receiving his comrades of the Grand Army headquarters. At 7 o'clock a large number of comrades and others formed in procession at the G. A. R. hall on Curtis street and marched to the Windsor hotel and escorted Gen. Kountz to Armory hall. The room was beautifully decorated with flags, post banners, etc. Over the stage had been hung a magnificent floral horse shoe bearing the words "Welcome, brave veterans." Commander-in-Chief Kountz, Commander Bohn and Staff, Senior Vice Commander Fisher and Post Commander Stimson occupied the platform The latter acted as master of ceremonies

After "The Red, White and Blue" had been sung Commander Bohn was introduced to the audience and in a short but stirring speech welcomed "The drummer boy of Mission Ridge" The speech was greeted with applause. Commander Kountz responded. He said he was more grateful for this cordial welcome than he could tell. He spoke briefly of the condition of the order Referring to General Grant, he said

Dear old comrade, all our hearts go out to you in loving sympathy. Your triumph in the love of your half million old comrades is as great as your triumphs on the field of battle. Your fame is a part of our fame and will live forever. When the heart of the old commander ceases to beat, the world will shed tears Other generations will bless his name and he will be recorded as the greatest of military geniuses"

The commander said he would carry to his home in Ohio pleasant memories of his visit to Colorado, and returned thanks for his more than cordial welcome.

"Marching thro' Georgia" was sung, after which ex Commander Stimson spoke briefly, and was followed by Mrs. Kennedy, commander of the Woman's Relief corps. General Sampson then introduced the following resolution, which was unanimously adopted

Resolved, That in the day of his affliction and sorrow we remember with grateful hearts one of the bravest and grandest generals who ever commanded an army, one who 20 years ago last Thursday consummated a series of victories that will ever cause us to hold dear the name of our late commander, General U S Grant, whose services will ever be appreciated by the friends of a united and prosperous people, whose magnanimity at Appomattox to those who surrendered to him can never be forgotten by them. While his ability and genius as a military leader and his honesty and devotion as a civic ruler will ever be recognized by the historian of all lands and ages, we will ever remember him as one who always proved true to his friends, and yet to-day he suffers more, perhaps, from the base ingratitude and treachery of one whom he trusted than from physical infirmities, We hereby extend to General Grant and his family our sincere sympathy in his afflictions and trials, trusting that the God of battles may comfort and sustain him, and that when the time comes to meet his first conqueror that he may prove victorious even over death, the last foe of man, and the great future may have in store for him higher and greater and purer victories than he has yet achieved.

After the resolution had been adopted "The Battle Cry of Freedom" was sung, when Mrs. Telford in a few appropriate remarks presented the guest of the evening with a basket of beautiful flowers. Miss Beemer favored the audience with a recitation of "Laska." General Fisher of Cheyenne extended an invitation to the department to hold its summer encampment in Cheyenne. The invitation was accepted by Commander Bohn. Judge Belford made an admirable speech of 20 minutes and was followed by the entire audience in singing "America" Captain Hogle's company gave silent drill Formality was then dispensed with and the meeting became genuinely social, and at a late hour the general was driven to his hotel.

Pueblo Criminalities

DENVER, April 11. A special to the Tribune-Republican from Pueblo says. Four miles east of Pueblo on the Arkansas river lives a man and his son named respectively Jeremiah and Slater Brown. Adjoining the ranch is that of Mr. Perry Bryson. Working for Bryson is a man named William Sanders. Old man Brown and his son fish for a living, having about twenty nets which they set in the river daily. A day or so ago some one robbed one of the nets. The day following Sanders was crossing Brown's field, when young Brown accused him of robbing the fish net. Sanders denied it. The lie was given, Brown struck Sanders and the latter thumped young Brown in good style. Brown came to town, swore out a warrant against Sanders for assault and the latter was arrested and fined $27. To-day Sanders came to town, paid his fine and swore out a warrant against the two Browns charging them with seining in the public waters of Colorado contrary to law and father and son were both arrested but released on bonds. Returning home, Sanders took a short cut across Brown's field. Young Brown told Sanders to get off the land, but the latter replied that he guessed not. Young Brown carried in his hand an old Springfield musket, and when Sanders showed an inclination to take his time in getting off the land, Slater Brown raised his gun and fired. The gun was loaded with slugs, and the shot took effect in Sanders' left fore arm, boring a hole through it as large as a hen's egg, lacerating all the muscles except that of the thumb, but breaking no bones. The arm was hanging at Sanders' side when the shot was fired and the bullet or bullets passed across his abdomen, cutting his pantaloons and underclothing to the skin, but injuring him in no way except that mentioned. Mr. Bryson was standing near, and old man Brown, who was watching the fracas, is said to have called out to his son to load her up and give Bryson a dose. Bryson is a powerful man and after a desperate fight succeeded in disarming young Brown and at the same time keeping the old man at bay, who was threatening him with a club. Young Brown was promptly arrested and is now in the county jail at Pueblo. The shooting is generally regarded as a reckless attempt at murder.

A young fellow named Frank Smith was arrested to-day by Marshal Gillen charged with horse stealing. He confessed to the crime when cornered The horses stolen were taken from a ranchman living on the St Charles, ten miles south of Pueblo.

At 9 o'clock to-night the wife of Emanuel Larsen, living on Front street, committed suicide by swallowing half an ounce of essential oil of bitter almonds, a deadly poison, which killed her in ten minutes. None of the members of the family seem to know the cause of the rash act, and no reason is assigned for it. Her husband is an undertaker

Fatal Accident.

DENVER, April 11. A Breckenridge special to the Tribune-Republican says: A man by the name of T. Rondy, an employe of the D. & S. P. railway, fell from a moving train near here to-day and was instantly killed. It is thought he formerly resided at Rock Island, Illinois

Gold Find in Texas.

EAGLE PASS, Texas, April 11 News reached here to-day of the discovery of rich gold finds in Santa Rosa mountains, about 100 miles west of Santa Rosa, Mexico. The discovery was made by the Davis brothers, who were working a profitable silver mine in the same range but have abandoned the silver mines and located claims in the gold fields. The gold lies in quartz and is described by old Californians to be the richest they ever saw.

THE RELIGIOUS WORLD.

Notes and Comments.

Within the last few years there has come into existence in many of our cities a simple and gracious form of Christian ministry known as The Flower Mission. All who are disposed are asked to send flowers from their gardens or conservatories to some place designated them by a committee appointed for the purpose The flowers are sent to the hospitals and to sick rooms where their beauty and fragrance may cheer the hearts of the weary and despondent invalids

We are glad to learn that the boys and girls of our new Liller school are each to have a large flower-bed on their respective play-grounds this summer, engaging in a generous rivalry to see whose bed will be the more beautiful; and that there is to be a flower mission in connection with this horticulture, through which the flowers that are grown may weekly be distributed to the sick We may be sure that this kindly ministry will bring a double blessing, a blessing to the boys and girls no less than to the sick. In a town where there are so many invalids, such a work of charity is peculiarly needed, and its refining and humanizing influence upon the children cannot fail to be great. This undertaking is so far as we are concerned a novel one. But it is certainly a very happy thought. It suggests the inquiry why should not all our churches have a flower-plat which should furnish the basis of a flower-mission.

The Salt Lake grand jury took a recess about March 4th and the federal marshals lapsed into inactivity until the pulse of the new administration could be felt. Intelligence has reached Utah that the attempt to bring polygamists to punishment meets with the highest favor in Washington, and so the transient calm has become a storm more threatening than ever. John Taylor's palace has been searched with a warrant from foundation to towers and every inmate received a subpoena George Q Cannon's houses have met with the same treatment, as have those of half a dozen others eminent in the theocracy. The flight of the doughty elders continues. So great is the fear of Judge Zane that the great April church conclave is held not in Salt Lake (a thing unheard of) but 100 miles north in Logan, in the recesses of whose temple Mr. Taylor is said to be concealed. It is not unlikely that the presence of a force of deputy marshals in Logan may interrupt the conference. It stated that the matter of procuring a new revelation is discussed in numerous priesthood meetings, and that a command may be expected from the skies (?) that the saints must marry no more, and from henceforth cleave only to the first wife. A credible rumor is current in Salt Lake that church emissaries have been empowered to plead for terms and to offer guarantees of future good behavior, if only the exiles can return and live without fear of prosecution. The decision of the United States supreme court, just rendered, practically sustains the disfranchisement of polygamists, and will be an able check to the increase of their political power.]

One of those generous givers for whom New England has become proverbial has just died in New Britain, Conn. When will our rich men in Colorado learn to be equally public spirited? In the will of this generous citizen, whose name is Cornelius B. Erwin, are the following bequests: His residence to the South Congregational church for a parsonage, together with $25,000 to maintain it, and $12,500 for a new chapel for the church. Smaller bequests to the Episcopal and Baptist churches, and $5,000 to the New Britain club. Legacies are also left to the churches of Booneville, N. Y., and a fund to establish a literary institute there, also legacies to Marietta, Drury, Doane and other small colleges; $10,000 to the Connecticut Industrial school and bequests to the American Missionary society, the Home and Baptist Missionary societies, which are also given residuary interests, together with the American College and Educational society and southern colleges.

In the last number of the North American Review the Scotch poet and litterateur Robert Buchanan thus writes concerning Mr. Robert Ingersoll

"For my own part I should prefer even to accept hell with John Calvin, rather than to eat cakes, drink ale, and munch hot ginger with Colonel Ingersoll He is the boy in the gallery, cracking nuts and making precocious comments during the performance of the tragedy of life; blind to the splendor of the scenery, deaf to the beauty of the dialogue, indifferent to the pathetic or tragic solicitations of the players, seeing in Christ or Buddha or Jehovah only a leading man spouting platitudes, and indifferently dressed for the part he is playing. A great mythus is to him a great 'lie,' nothing more, a great poetic theology is only an invention of the arch-enemy Hugely does he enjoy the joke of the garden of Eden or the tree of Iggdrasill, clearly does he perceive, having hung round the stage door of the world, that the goddesses are only ballet girls, exhibiting their nudity for so much a night. To him Æschylus has no terror, Sophocles no charm, the author of the Book of Job no pathos, everything is leather and prunella, except the performance of Harlequin."

The Chicago Advance contains an article from the pen of Miss Willard on the temperance outlook which is encouraging to those who, like ourselves, have more faith in education than in legal prohibitions. According to this article, the states of Alabama Missouri, Nebraska, Nevada, Oregon, Kansas, Michigan, New York, Vermont, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Maine have all passed laws providing for instruction in physiology in the public schools, with special reference to the effect of alcoholic liquors on the human frame; and there is more or less prospect of similar legislation in the states of West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Illinois, and some others Local option laws giving the opportunity for prohibition to the towns or counties have also been adopted by the states of Alabama and Oregon Such a law already exists in the states of New York and Massachusetts, and we know not what others This record shows what the Woman's Christian Temperance union can do when it works outside of party politics, and can thus secure the co operation of the good people of all parties, and indicates the methods which promise the best results and the least reaction It is to be added that Kansas has strengthened her prohibitory law, and the court in Iowa has held that her prohibitory law is constitutional. Oregon has adopted a bill submitting a constitutional prohibition to the people, and Miss Willard expects the same from the Tennessee legislature

Lord Napier, in a recent address before the Church of England Temperance society, said that, while commanding the armies in India, a return made to him relating to eighteen thousand men showed that among the total abstainers there was no crime, but that the whole body of crime was among the non abstainers

We call attention to some new and remarkably attractive offerings in the two-column advertisement of Messrs. Potter & DeCoursey, managers of the Colorado Springs real estate, mining and insurance agency, on our first page. Among the properties offered, the Pike's Peak Driving park or race course, at $4,000, seems like a bargain that will bear examination by intending investors. They also offer some business properties paying incomes of ten per cent and over, and request the public to call and examine them.

The aim of the projectors of this new entreprise is to offer not only a profitable investment, but also an opportunity of acquiring a comparatively inexpensive home, within easy reach of the city, so situated that it can be kept forever free from the nuisances and annoyances that are so frequently found even in the best localities of our largest cities. Denver has now become so large and so closely built a city that it seems impossible within its boundaries to fully enjoy that pure air and delightful climate for which Colorado is justly celebrated.

LOCATION AND DISTANCE FROM DENVER.

The town is laid out on both sides of Colfax avenue, a mile and one half from the City Park, on an elevated plateau, commanding magnificent views on all sides. The soil is rich and warm, suitable for the growth of shade, ornamental and fruit trees and is well watered by ditches for garden and lawn irrigation. It is the intention to supply artesian water for domestic purposes. There are no railroad crossings on the avenues leading to Montclair, which are among the best in the country for driving or bicycling.

SOCIAL ADVANTAGES

Montclair will not only have all the attractions of a rural residence, but will also combine the educational, religious and business advantages of a large city.

As the conditions on which the lots are sold preclude forever the sale of intoxicating liquors, Montclair will have a pure and moral atmosphere, as beneficial to society as the bracing air of Colorado is to the invalid.
